- The team leaders/trainers in charge are solely responsible for the training on the tracks provided. Bergbahnen Sölden accepts no responsibility or liability whatsoever, not even towards third parties. The instructions of the lift and piste staff must be followed without fail. All training teams are instructed to carry out the measures necessary for the safe completion of a race or training in an orderly manner, so that no further tasks fall to the piste groomer. The preparation of the piste, as well as the raising of a start hill, does not mean that the piste-keeper assumes any additional responsibility. The fall space, especially to the public ski slopes, is to be kept according to the requirements.
- The training group undertakes to train exclusively in the assigned sector. In the respective sector, the first run is always to be marked out starting from the edge as parallel as possible to the boundary, for the following runs parallel to the respective previous run.

- The final allocation will be made daily directly at the start of the training tracks by the respective person in charge upon presentation of the reservation / booking confirmation.
- Should there be a change in the piste allocation due to weather conditions or other external influences, Bergbahnen Sölden will endeavour to find appropriate training opportunities.
- The operating times of the individual lifts are determined by our management in accordance with the weather and temperature conditions.

- No taxis, dyes, snow cement, etc. may be used. All grooming measures and assignments are coordinated by the responsible slope manager.
